ticular industries.

Mr. Kent delivered an address on "Museums" before the members of the Library association, who were gathered in the Assembly hall of the Mattatuck Fostorical Society for their annual meeting. There were about 80 librarians at the forenoon session. Mr. Kent made his remarks on preparedness near the close of his ad-dress, after he had told of the prac-tice of American manufacturers of American manufacturers of s, jewelry, carpets, rugs, furni-and women's hats, in sending experts and designers to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in order to secure designs for the manufac-tore of their products. These design-ers for years past had visited France rs for years past had visited France and Germany and other European countries annually, to get their designs, but the war conditions last year and this year have barred the designers from Europe. These manufacturers, he said, were surprised to find that at the Metropolitan museum there were interesting and rare old objects in the collec-tions which would make admirable patterns for their needs. It was not long before the building was fairly swarming with designers, copylsts and photographers, and the museum had entered a most interesting field of use-fulness. He said that both during the The fourth quarterly conference of the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church was held in the vestry Wednesday evening, Rev. G. G. Scrivener, signs and patterns so necessary to their industrial life.

Mr. Kent frankly told the librarians that he thought fewer books were being read now than formerly and said that proof of this was in the wonder ful success of the motion pictures. People would much rather see things, he said, than read what someone else might say about them. He advocate i the establishment, in the corner of every library, of a permanent exhibi-tion of prints and etchings and said the libraries should create a respect for books and should teach people how to select and buy books and bibliograph-ies. He said that in museums the of-ficials were always very polite to col-lectors of art works and in many instances these collectors, in time, do-nated some of their collections to the public. He advocated such a cours among librarians.

GROTON WOMAN STARTS A NEW SUIT

Mrs. Chapman Asks Court for $10,-000 From Husband and Compulsory

Christopher B. Chapman of Groton has again been sued by his wife, Mrs. Mary B. Chapman of Groton for nonupport. By papers served Thursday drs. Chapman asks damages of $10,-00 and that her husband be compelled support her. The papers are returnable before the superior court the first Tuesday in March.

The suit is another chapter in a long drawn out legal battle between Mrs. Chapman and her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman were married in 1893 and May 30, 1895, the former deserted his wife. Mrs. Chapman, through legal action, compelled her husband to support her and then he obtained a divorce in Kentucky some time later.

Recently another action was fought out in the superior court in this city as a result of which Judge Milton A. Shumway handed down a decision set-ting aside the divorce decree obtained by Chapman in Kentucky as illegal and ordering him to pay his wife a weekly allowance. Now she brings another suit to com-el her husband to contribute further oward her support and petitions the lowance sufficient for her support and that her husband be required to fur-nish a sufficient surety to compel him to abide by the decision of the court. SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, recently ap ointed medical inspector of the pub-c schools, will start on his duties on Ionday and also Miss Charlotte M. Albertine, visiting nurse will sume her duties on the same day. A number of people are in the dark as to what the medical inspecton means. It means that the school children are inspected for contagious and infectious diseases, cleanliness and infectious diseases, cleanliness and mental conditions. The inspector upon finding any defects makes a re-port to the parents regarding the con-dition of the child and refers them to their family physician. Children who are found to have contagious or infectious diseases are cept out of school thereby protect-ng the other children. If a case of contagious disease is found the inpector has the schoolroom thorough-y fumigated and instead of closing the room for a period of time he in-spects the children daily, thus sav-ing the closing of the room. This protects the children and saves time

n school studies.

The visiting nurse accompanies the spector. Several inquiries have been made in regard to the inspection, some being of the opinion that the inspector renders treatment but this is not his duty. He only recommends and protects the children from catching contagious and infectious diseases.
